Deuteromilus Mensae

Abstract 2354 - The song tells the story of the lobate debris aprons, which have remained stagnant and unappreciated for millennia before Mars Reconnaissance Orbiter comes stampeding in at the end to probe them with radar. Playing music has been a great hobby for unwinding after long days of working on my PhD. Although I’ve enjoyed merging the two here, I must caution that this is only in good fun and not meant as a factual treatise on lobate debris aprons. For proper science, see Abstract #2354. Materials: Hummingbird Acoustic Guitar Les Paul Electric Guitar Classic 30 Amp Djembe MacBook with Garageband All music performed by myself.
